Professional Real Estate Photography

SUCCESS

When selling your home it is said that “a picture can be worth more than a thousand words.” Well, I believe that it is worth so much more! The photos that buyers see when they are looking for a new home are often the first and only chance to make an incredible first impression. Less-than-flattering photos can turn buyer off and lead to very few showings.

Great photos will immediately grab potential buyer's attention and help you sell your home faster and for the most money. Professional photography brings your home to life and communicates all of the important features and qualities to potential buyers. It also differentiates your home from the other 1000's of homes on the market at any given time.

It is a statistical fact that homes that have pictures shot by a professional photographer with professional equipment sell quicker and for the most money.

Nearly 90% of Buyers in the United States who bought a home last year said that they used the Internet to assist them in finding their new home. Since so many people will be looking at your home on the Internet and will be deciding which homes to preview from those Internet photos. Don't let buyers make assumptions about a home, have Birmingham's oldest real estate photographic company professionally shoot your home to give it the absolute best chance of SELLING!
